Promoting Mental Health in Young Children

Promoting Mental Health in Young Children

- When law enforcement encounters a child at the scene of an incident, they identify the child and send a notice to their school that they were involved in a police incident the night before and may have academic or behavioral problems that day. The notice includes no details about the incident, and contains only the child's name and three words: Handle with Care.
- School receives the notice before the start of the school day, so that staff are prepared to "handle the child with care" and respond in a trauma-informed way
